

Participation of Poznań lawyers in the works of the Codification Committee of the Republic of Poland on unifying private law in the years 1919-1939

In 2013, we had the 80th anniversary of establishing the Code of Obligations - a legal act which even today is considered as the best creation of jurisprudence. Due to this anniversary, the author undertook to carry out research on the process of private law codification during the Second Republic of Poland. The aim of this article is to summarize and systematize the findings of Polish legal science on the participation of lawyers from Poznań in the process of unifying the contract law. The reader will find an extensive bibliographic review on this topic, information on Poznań lawyers participating in the works of the Codification Committee of the Republic of Poland and on their functions in the Committee as well.

Keywords: private law codification, the Code of Obligations, Poznań lawyers